Be the last survivor by Liam Doolan Wed 29th Apr 2020 The Nintendo Switch version of the free-to-play first-person shooter Warface has just received an update that adds a 32-player Battle Royale mode. Below is the official announcement followed by a rundown of it: Battle Royale is now live on Nintendo Switch. It's time to get into action! Details: pic.twitter.com/8715HLCQYy— Warface (@Warface) April 28, 2020 The Battle Royale mode is a unique game mode, completely unlike any of the others. Your goal is to eliminate all opponents and be the last survivor. But it won't be easy: at the beginning of the round, all you'll have at your disposal is a melee weapon, and if you want to equip yourself with something more serious, you'll have to hurry! There's currently no option to play in a team - so you'll just have to act alone. During each match, you'll want to keep an eye out for cargo drops, and once you die - that's it, it's game over.
